

Brief description

The project "Das neue WIR" accompanies 20 people aged 18 - 27 from Berlin who want to shape their city. On a voluntary basis they work in diverse teams, plan a project and implement it. The phases from the idea to the project development are implemented in several modules: Learning in practice. The goal is to create a new common reality to life.

Target group

The project is aimed at all young people from Berlin, aged between 18 and 27 years. We are looking for committed people, who want to design their Berlin through voluntary projects.

The course of the project

The project consists of two introductory weekends followed by monthly accompanying modules. The contents of the modules are developed in consultation with the participants.

The participants form teams that develop and implement project ideas. You can:

- get to know the tools of project development and implementation (such as the development of ideas, applications, budget planning), self-organization
- try out intercultural teamwork and share experiences
- try out to present, negotiate and moderate

Two project facilitators from the Akademie für Ehrenamtlichkeit Deutschland and SC Bomani e.V. support the participants in the conception and implementation of their project ideas. After completion of the project, the participants are able to develop, present and successfully carry out their own projects. All participants receive a certificate.
